Now Open — Application Period 1

Dear PhD-students, supervisors and all others within the CIVIS university alliance,

This is to inform you that the first application period of 2023 for Stockholm University's Doctoral School in the Humanities, is open, and that applications are received from May 15 through June 15. Thereafter, in the week before Midsummer (June 25), letters of confirmation will be sent out, as well as notices of places on reserve lists, when applicable.

Please note that the series of courses on Research Ethics offered by the Department of Philosophy are not a part of the Doctoral School, and thus have their own application process.

All seven courses in this newsletter are offered online, are free of charge and are open to all PhD-students, regardless of their home faculty or university. Therefore, feel free to share this newsletter with all your contacts!

Kindest regards,

Lars Nordgren

Research Officer

Courses on Research Ethics: Autumn 2023

In the Autumn semester of 2023, the Department of Philosophy offers a series of online courses on Research Ethics. The series begins with an introductory course, which is followed by courses on Conduct and Misconduct, Harm and Consent, Values and Ethical Vetting. More information and application on the Department's website.

FREE-STANDING COURSES ONLINE, AUTUMN 2023

Academic Writing for International Publication, 7,5 ECTS

The course improves the participants' academic writing skills in English in order to facilitate publication output in international peer-reviewed journals. Also included in the course is the preparation of monograph proposals.

The Dynamics of Multilingualism: Encounters and Entanglements, 7,5 ECTS

The course investigates complexities regarding language, identity, and place under global conditions. It deals with language in motion and people's ability (or lack thereof) to construct new identities and communities through language under current global conditions.

15
JUNE

Applications are received until June 15

The general requirement for all courses is the status of PhD-student. A special application form is used to apply for a place in a course. The supervisor (or equivalent) must support the doctoral student's application with a motivation as to why the doctoral student should participate in the course. The supervisor submits the application to the following address:

doctoralschool@hum.su.se.

Further information on the application process can be found on all course pages.

FREE-STANDING COURSES ONLINE, SPRING 2024

Introduction to Linguistic Discourse Analysis, 7,5 ECTS

The course takes its starting point in discourse linguistics and critical discourse analysis, where theoretical concepts and methodological approaches aspire at revealing how social structures and power relations are shaped and reshaped through written, spoken and visual language use.

Open Science for PhD-Students, 5,0 ECTS

The course gives PhD students essential skills in good research data management and open access publication routes. The overarching goal is to improve the students' knowledge about good practices in scholarly communication, which involves managing and sharing research data and publishing articles and books in a balanced way.

The Dynamics of Multilingualism: Affinities and Affordances, 7,5 ECTS

The course addresses the need for a multidisciplinary approach in relation to the global challenges of increased mobility and multilingualism: more specifically, the emergence of new global – often temporary – linguistic communities, associated communicative practices and the affordances that enable their existence. The course examines how these communities are formed by and through different languages.

Linguistic Ethnography, 7,5 ECTS

In the course, Linguistic Ethnography and its contributions to research on language – particularly multilingualism – and identity in educational and other social contexts is introduced, discussed and problematized. For example, in what ways are language and other semiotic practices entangled with ideologies and sociopolitical discourses on an individual level?
